

“What on Earth is That?” Quiz Night Local Fun and Games!

What does a trocar and cannula have in common with a pap boat? How is a zigzag clock connected with a bunion shoe stretcher or a tonsil guillotine allied to an Eskimo fishing line?

They are all treasured objects from someone’s attic? Warm

They are all period objects? Warmer still.

They were all drawn into the Long Sutton village hall by the smell of Caroline Astington’s delicious cooking? (Hot chilli.) Hot.

You are now getting the flavour of the latest FOLSC fundraising event “What on earth is that?”, a game the committee devised, in which, 20 mystery objects were offered up to teams for 4 minutes to guess their name, use or function and period. At the end of the 4 minutes, Geoff Pringle, in his psychedelic dress shirt, sounded a large fog horn and a new object was delivered to table by David Aitken, in his wonderful whirly waistcoat. All of this washed down by a quantity of wine or beer from the FOLSC bar, which may have had its effect on the creativity of the answers put forward. Great fun was had by all and the sell-out event managed to raise just over £1000 for FOLSC. I am sure the FOLSC Trustees would wish me to thank (on their behalf) everybody who attended for raising such a magnificent sum.
